

And you think she's a little treasure!

And she may well be, but however efficient your cleaning staff, chances are they are using unsuitable products to clean computer and office equipment which demands dedicated and specialised cleaning.

For instance, if your cleaning staff are using a traditional wax-based cleaning product and a duster to clean your telephone, all they are doing is spreading germs from phone to phone and creating an ideal germ breeding environment. This is particularly pertinent if your phone is shared with others – so beware.

Using the best selling dedicated phone cleaner, Phonecane ensures that germs are wiped out on contact and not given the chance to multiply or spread. The same applies to computer users. Just think what lives in the average keyboard – saliva, body fat, food particles, human hair. Need we go on? Use the best selling Sprayduster to keep keyboards and other equipment free from dust and debris.

AF is the market leader in dedicated computer and office equipment cleaning products, so make sure you (and your little treasure) use them regularly.
